BLUE TEAM DROPS CLOSE DEBATE IN SEASON'S OPENER

Split Decision by Judges Gives Victory to St. Michael's College

LEARY '25, GAINS PLATFORM HONORS

Purple's Persuasive Appeal Wins Out Over Cold Logic of the Blue

Middlebury lost its first intercollegiate debate of the season last Friday night at Winooski when the judges rendered a two to one decision in favor of St. Michael's. The Blue team, comprised of Merrick W. Chapin '25, captain, John J. Leary '25 and Thomas O. Carlson '25, upheld the affirmative of the question "Resolved' That Congress should have the power to pass a measure over the veto of the Supreme Court by a two-thirds vote." The debate was a close one as is evidenced by the split decision given by the three judges. The Middlebury team presented a logical and clear constructive case and excelled in refutation but the impassioned eloquence of the Purple orators seemed to have the greatest persuasive appeal.

Leary '25, was undoubtedly the best speaker of the evening, with a fiery delivery that appealed to the audience He cleverly worked conclusive refutation of his opponents arguments into his constructive speech.

Carlson opened the debate for Middlebury by showing the great need now exisiting for such a change. He pointed out the criticism that has been directed against the court and the abuses arising from the present system. In the first speech for the negative, Ralph Baudy '27 of New York City give arguments to prove that to take away from the Court this power would not be in keeping with the Constitution. He maintained that the Constitution must be protected and obeyed and that the Court can uphold it better than any other agency. He also pointed out that the Court has not usurped any power.

Chapin, captain of Middlebury's team, opened his speech by pointing out that his opponent had wasted the

Sorority Formal Held Amid Exotic Setting

The hanging mosses, luxurious palms, cocoanuts and brilliantly hued parrots of a Florida jungle transformed the Addison House into an extremely artistic setting for the annual formal dance of Kappa Kappa Gamma Sorority on Saturday night. At one end of the hall was a bright moon rising above tropical waters and sands. Canoe paddles, crossed before the pine banked fireplace, fell during the earthquake although no one present felt it.

Jack Lee's Orchestra furnished the music to which forty couples danced, chaperoned by President and Mrs. Paul D. Moody, Professor and Mrs. Charles A. Adams, and Dr. and Mrs. Vernon C. Harrington. The representatives included Marjorie Winter, Pi Beta Phi; Helen Sheldon, Sigma Kappa; Eunice Hutchison, Delta Delta Delta; Isobel Sutherland, Theta Chi Epsilon; Dorothy Reed, Delta Omega Delta, and Marion Pterson.

Marian Wolcott, chairman, Eleanor Sprague, Margaret Doty, Mary Birdsall, J. Louise Covert and Margaret Sedgwick were the committee in charge.

President Moody Attends Inaugural

President Paul D. Moody left here Monday afternoon to join the Vermont State delegation, which is to attend the inauguration ceremonies of Vermont's native son in Washington today.

The Vermont delegation ,of which President Moody has been appointed a member ,is headed by Governor Franklin S. Billings and includes representatives from both Norwich and the University of Vermont, the governor's staff, and other prominent state officials.

The program for the Vermont party as announced by Governor Billings covers a period of three days and includes, besides the participation in the inaugural ceremonies proper a reception to the delegation at the home of Senator Dale; a tea by the University of Vermont women in honor of Mrs. Coolidge, who is a graduate of U. V. M.; a dinner by Mr. and Mrs. O. M. Barber at the Wardman Park Hotel; the Charity ball at the Mayflower Hotel this evening, and dinner Thursday at the New Willard Hotel.

MIDDLEBURY 48–23 BURIES THE SAINT MICHAEL'S QUINTET

Morey's Quintet Rolls Up Large Score; Starting in After Whistle Blows

"BILL" RICE CAGES OVER FIRST TALLY

Hollquist Leads Scoring—Pierce Alone Penetrates Rice—Hasseltine Guard

Middlebury passed its last obstacle towards a tie for the state basketball championship last night in McCullough Gymnasium. Playing hard and fast throughout the Blue team had little difficulty in winning from St. Michael's 48-23. Although St. Mike's got off to a good start, Middlebury soon passed her and stayed in the lead for the rest of the game. The team completely outpassed the visitors and had little difficulty in scoring.

Captain Hollquist again led the men in scoring, sinking six baskets and a foul. Knowles played one of his best games of the year at center closely following Hollquist in the scoring with five field goals. "Short" Rice and Hasseltine held the opponents from running up any score and scored five baskets between them. Pierce was the only St. Michael man who had any success against this guarding.

Bill Rice started the scoring after several minutes of play dropping in the first free throw. Two baskets in quick succession gave St. Mike's a three point lead over the varsity. The upstate team held this lead till the score reached 7-6 with about half the period elapsed. Here Bill Rice dropped in a beautiful basket and the varsity went into lead never to be headed again. In the remainder of the half the Blue team passed around the visitors running up twenty-five points while St. Michael's were scoring but a single basket. The half ended with the score 25-9.

The upstaters again started a rally at the beginning of the second period running up four points while the varsity was scoreless. Hollquist started the scoring with two shots from behind the foul line each dropping cleanly thru the ring. Gassette of St. Mich-

GLEE CLUB OFF ON BIG MUSIC TRIP

Will Compete on Saturday With 13 of Country's Best Collegiate Talent

TO BROADCAST FROM WEAF IN NEW YORK

Concerts at New Britain and Mamaroneck Before Week's Major Event

Middlebury College Glee Club will leave here tomorrow morning on its first trip this season. The club will appear at New Britain, Conn., Thursday evening under the auspices of the Young Women's Society of the First Congregational church; and at Mamaroneck, N. Y., on Friday night under the auspices of the Parent-Teachers' Association of Rye Neck High school. The climax of the trip will come at New York city on Saturday evening when the club together with thirteen other collegiate musical organizations will participate in the Inter-Collegiate Musical Contest in Carnegie Hall.

Saturday evening, March 7, the Glee Club will compete with the thirteen other organizations from Eastern Colleges and universities, in Carnegie Hall, New York. The contest calls for three songs to be given by each competing club. First, a song of their own choice; second, a prize song assigned for all; third, a typical college song to be chosen by the club. As a choice song the Middlebury Glee Club will sing "Carnovale" by Rossini; the prize song required of every club is to be "Come Again Sweet Love," by Dowland; the college song for Middlebury will be "Gamaliel Painter's Cane" by E. Pruda Wiley. At the close of the contest all the competing clubs will join in giving

HOLLQUIST, EDDY AND "SHORTY" RICE ARE BIG BASKET TOSSERS FOR MOREY'S TEAM

Kobera Piles Up Points for Bay State Team—White Mountain Aggregation Misses Metcalf During First Period of Friday's Clash

By PAUL WOLFSKEHL, JR.

Playing their next to the last game away from home for the season the Middlebury basketball team went down to defeat before New Hampshire State at Durham Friday night, Feb. 27, by the score of 37-25. Although Middlebury was not rated to beat New Hampshire they forced the home team to play a hard fast game thruout. The Granite State team was handicapped by the absence of Metcalf, all New England forward who was only able to play part of the second half.

As was a case in a number of games this season the team was not able to get started fast enough. Hardly had the game started than the home team went into a four point lead which grew to ten points before the half ended. Hollquist and Eddy were the only ones who could find the basket during the half, while McKinley and Craig put their team in the lead with seven baskets between them. The half ended with Middlebury on the short end of a 20-10 score.

In the first few minutes of the second half the blue commenced to cut down this lead. Baskets by McNeil and Hollquist put the visitors within scoring distance of New Hampshire. However as the half progressed the home team again started scoring and holding Middlebury even. They were unable to increase their lead although Metcalf went in towards the end and managed to sink one basket and several fouls

The Summary:

New Hampshire 37		Middlebury 25

Delta Kappa Epsilon Has Annual Initiation Banquet

Alpha Alpha chapter of Delta Kappa Epsilon fraternity held its annual initiation banquet at the Addison House Wednesday evening, February 25. Walter A Potter '26, was toastmaster. Seven members of the class of 1928 were taken into the fraternity.

The new members of the fraternity taken in at this time, all of the class of '28 are: Charles A. Arnold, Harry V. Brooks, W. Warren Crawford, Rollin C. Furbush, Thomas McCann, Roland Weser.

With Walter A. Potter '26, presiding, the following toasts were given: "Welcome to New Brothers," Donald D. Frederickson '25; "Response," Rollin C. Furbush '28; "Alumni" Phillip E. Mellen '04; "Our College," Jesse S. Yeaw '25.

Members of the alumni present were: Charles Adams '95; John Fletcher '87; Rowland Shepardson '23; Maurice Bingham '20 and Ralph Foote '16.

On Saturday night the varsity upset the dope pail and completely outplayed and outgeneralded the strong Northeastern team winning by the score of 32-16. Northeastern, fresh from a victory over Boston University two nights previously was not expecting as hard a game as she got mainly because of a B. U. victory over Vermont at Burlington. However Captain Hollquist with twelve baskets and three fouls, a total of thirteen points, led his team to a well earned victory over the Boston team.

Taking advantage of a large floor Middlebury outpassed the visitors and with Hollquist and "Shorty" Rice breaking through the home team defense the Blue managed to hold the lead. "Shorty" Rice with four baskets and three fouls followed Hollquist in the scoring with eight points. Hasseltine at guard played his usually hard game holding the Boston forwards to one basket in the first half and two in the second.

A basket by Hollquist started the scoring and before the home team could score the Blue had run up a six point lead. Playing hard and fast the varsity managed to hold on to this lead throughout the half despite attempts of the Boston team to pierce the defense. Towards the end of the period a basket by Rice gave the team a lead of eight points bringiing the score to 17-9 where it stayed till the end of the half.

The second started with Northeastern making frequent substitutions in an effort to wear down the Middlebury team. However with Knowles, McNeil, Hollquist and Rice working in a smooth combination the team slowly drew away from the home team running into a safe lead in about ten minutes of play. Holding the Northeastern team even the varsity kept the pace going fast for the rest of the game.

Vermont Day at the Capitol

Today Vermont's distinguished son renews his oath to execute the laws of the land as the 30th President of the United States. And amid what different surroundings when compared to that early morning scene, when Calvin Coolidge repeated the words of the obligation as his father administered the oath of office to him on the family Bible in the faint rays of an oil lamp! Today the Chief Justice will perform that rite. But the old Bible will be used again.

Though he has been raised to the highest office the country can bestow upon any man, President Coolidge has not lost that native Vermont characteristic—simplicity. He has requested that as little pomp and ceremony as possible be used. In following his policy of economy, he has reduced the expenses of inauguration to the absolute minimum. He believes in the old adage "actions speak louder than words," for he is attempting to make the shortest inauguration speech on record.

Vermont is proud of Calvin Coolidge—her shrewd, honest, unassuming son. He has never thrust himself forward. He has advanced to his high office by being on the job when he was needed and always finishing what he started.

Can we not acquire something of his character from our association with these granite hills? We cannot all be presidents, but we can absorb that something which is prevalent in the atmosphere of Vermont and make the most of our time spent here.

So Wonderful as Thirst

Robert Frost, who, many forget, is a professor as well as a poet, once interrupted a conversation with one of his friends by the seeming irrevelant question. "Do you know anything about feeding chickens?" After the admission had been made that this line of activity was not among his accomplishments, Mr. Frost explained that often when he went into a barnyard the chickens looked at him askance, and backed away in a most peculiar manner, with their heads cocked on one side rather impudently, refusing to come for the grain. "When they act like that," advised the poet, "don't feed them. Wait until they get hungry. I think a good many of our students are like that."

Could there be a clearer, more graphic picture of what a good many occupants of seats in college classrooms are like? Foreigners coming to this country invariably exclaim, and never cease to marvel at the fact that a college education for the average American is so accessible, whereas in England and many of the continental countries a young person going to a university is a highly favored and fortunate individual. Here, partly because America is such a wealthy country, and because so much money is in circulation, and also because by scholarships and opportunities for work, there are comparatively few denied the privilege if their determination and desire is strong enough, the gates are rarely barred.

The day when a book was a great rarity and a treat, a thing to walk miles to read, to be treasured and revered, is past. We read incredulously of Lincoln and how much his small and limited store of books meant to him. We look at our libraries, public and private, overflowing with books on all subjects, and take them as much for granted as the radio and telephone. It would be an interesting experiment to see what would happen if a real hunger could be created for knowledge and education. What would happen if the libraries were barred, and if it took great influence and power, and demonstration of ability to be admitted? Inside of a few years would there not be in some hearts, at least, a longing for something beside the Ethel M. Dell school of mechanical, ground out tin music literature? If it took time and effort and strenuous concentration to gain admission to study at a college or university, would it not mean more, would we be as casual, would we not lose a little of that most abominable habit of the present generation, taking everything and all for granted.

Oh, for a hunger to wake us from a sleep of complacency.

"I drank at every vine,
The last was like the first
I came upon no vine
So wonderful as thirst."

A New Coach

Those who are in charge of the athletic policies of the college will soon be searching about for a new coach. Perhaps they have already started the task. It is the unanimous hope of the student body that in doing so they will make every effort to secure a person who as nearly as possible has the ability to handle the teams in the way that his predecessor has done.

Middlebury has built up an enviable athletic reputation in the past few years. That reputation is a worthwhile asset to the college and it will be a paying investment to keep it on its present standard. In a college like this where only a limited number of men are available for teams, many of whom do not have outstanding natural athletic ability, coaching is a factor which counts in the teams' success even more than in the big colleges where many great athletes are always available. Middlebury has been fortunate in the past few years in having a coach who was capable of the task which faced him, but his good work can not be carried on unless a man of nearly equal ability succeeds him.

It will be a difficult task to get such a man. Good coaches command large salaries and are in great demand. There probably are but few available. However as in everything else you can get what you want if you look far enough for it. It behooves Middlebury, especially with the schedule which the football team is to face during the coming season, to look far and wide for the new coach. We must not accept the first man who applies for the job or even the best of many who may apply for the position. We must go out on our own initiative and search for the one man who is best qualified to coach our teams.

Since it is imperative that Coach Morey leave us, we must make the best of it. Realizing how difficult it will be to get a capable man to fill the position, Middlebury students, alumni and friends hope that nothing will be spared in an endeavor to find a coach who will carry on. —J. S. J.

One of the great questions argued annually is the advisability of having compulsory chapel at Middlebury. Here is a new angle of the matter brought out by one who hates it equally as much, but for a different reason. The quotation is taken from a communication sent to the editor of the New York Times.

" In one or two cases the evil is aggravated by the fact that compulsion extends to undergraduates only and not to faculty, as though there were some kind of need of God which man can outgrow. For fine confused academic thinking this surely takes the palm.

"There is one aspect of the matter which specially deserves public attention. Is compulsory chapel quite fair to the visiting preacher? I am sure that these colleges desire to be courteous to their visitors, and nothing could improve upon the gracious kindness with which preachers are received by the college officials. But does not the logic of the situation of 'compulsory chapel' call for the limitation of invitations to preach to prison chaplains accustomed to deal with audiences reluctantly present?"

This was written by a man who has preached before several Eastern colleges in which they have compulsory chapel, termed by him as "monstrous medievalism." While we may or may not agree with him, there is something to his observation.

Sunday: 6:30 p. m., Intersorority sing, Pearsons Hall steps.

Y. W. C. A. Plans Discussion Groups

The Y. W. C. A. meeting Tuesday evening was given over to Elizabeth Howard and Ruth Jackson, who attended the Y W. C. A. conference at East Northfield recently. The subject was "Thinking Thru" and each of the girls gave a short talk touching on the problems which impressed them most at the conference. They made a plea for discussion groups at Middlebury and during the latter part of the meeting four separate groups were formed under the leadership of Misses Howard Jackson, Harder and Wright to discuss any questions which had arisen during the reports. It is hoped that those four discussion groups will become a nucleus of many more in all the dormitories.

AMBITIONS' VALUE VESPER SUBJECT

Doctor V. C. Harrington Emphasizes Need of An Inspiring Work

Dr. Vernon C. Harrington spoke at Vesper Service Sunday evening, March 1, basing his text on a passage from Nehemiah, "I am busy about great work so that I cannot come down." These were the words of Nehemiah, a part of his message to the enemies who were trying to stop the rebuilding of Jerusalem, but they may be applied to modern life as well. It is the duty and privilege of all men and women to be about a great work, a fundamental work. We must fill as large a place and do as great a service as possible; we must foster great ambitions and great endeavors; we should not be satisfied with mediocrity, but deliver ourselves to the service of the world.

If we are busy about great work many are the gains. A meaning is put into life, the meaning which comes when the petty little things become endurable in the light of the whole. The best in us is brought out, giving a challenge to the ultimate resources of our nature. Great enthusiasm, which is the fire of life, is provoked. We become brave, and are helped to self-discipline, since within us is the force which makes it possible for one to have himself in hand. Being busy about great work also helps us in resisting temptation; there is no negative way to be good, but a positive which demands a devotion to something which we feel worthy of all our powers. Being busy about a great work is, above all, the making of a man, for it is the taking hold of something splendidly fundamental—a reaching beyond our own lives.

Oxford Debates Give Opinion On American College Life

Before their recent departure for Hawaii, the Oxford Debate Team was asked by the Stanford University Daily Palo Alto for their opinions in American college life.

Concerning fraternities the three Englishmen voiced unanimous disapproval. J. D. Woodruff, leader of the Oxford team echoed the opinion of William Robson, from the London School of Economics, whose much discussed opinion of American colleges appeared in The New Student, Dec. 20.

"The college fraternities seem to exist to force their members into a mound," said Woodruff. "The pressure on the individual is tremendous. Every tangent and every angle that would make him stand out as an individual is removed. One fraternity man told me they took in only the boys who gave promise of 'doing something big.' That, to me, seems appalling. It implies a scramble for a certain sort of success that crowds out some of the finest values of living."

Contrasting the American plan of university with the English. Woodruff said: There is a genial tolerance at Oxford for students who would rather talk than work. American colleges are over organized, and students are too earnest for high scholarship. It is a great mistake to do everything too well. There are many things that, although they are worth doing, are not worth doing well."

"Few persons have a taste for scholarship, which is of no more importance in itself than a taste for doughnuts or cabbage. It is a mistake for a college to try to force education on a student."

BASEBALL FACES AMBITIOUS CARD FOR THIS SPRING

Schedule Including Dartmouth, Tufts, Fordham, B. U., Starts at Providence

One of the most ambitious baseball schedules ever undertaken by a Middlebury team has been announced by Manager Spencer '25, for this spring. The schedule, which includes six home games and fourteen games away, opens on April 8th against Providence College at Providence. The Blue and White twirlers will invade New York City for a three day's battle against New York University, College of City of N. Y. and Fordham University on April 9th, 10th and 11th respectively.

On April 25th the team will get back to the hills again in a battle with Dartmouth at Hanover. A tour of Massachusetts including games with Worcester Tech, Tufts, Springfield and Boston College will follow the Dartmouth game ending on May 2 with the game at Boston College.

From May 7th to May 16th the Black Panther will be very much occupied with disposing of U. V. M. and Norwich in the State series. There are three home games and two games away in the series

Hamilton and Colgate are new comers on the Blue and White schedule and will be met on their home grounds on May 22nd and 23rd respectively. A game with St. Francis on May 20th at Middlebury will precede the Colgate and Hamilton games. Springfield will play at Middlebury on Decoration Day. and on June 3 Middlebury will travel to Winooski to tilt with St. Michael's. Bates College will be the last opponent on the Middlebury schedule and will play here on June 5th.

Manager Spencer is negotiating for a commencement game to be played at Middlebury on June 13th. The arrangements are not final as yet, but the opponent for this game if it is scheduled, will be announced at an early date. There is also a possibility of a game with Boston University on May 25th to be played at Middlebury. The arrangements will doubtless be completed in a very short time if the games can be scheduled.

The schedule:

April 8—Providence College at Providence.
April 9—N. Y. U. at New York City.
April 10—C. C. N. Y. at New York City.
April 11—Fordham University at New York City.
April 25—Dartmouth at Hanover.
April 29—Worcester Tech at Worcester.
April 30—Tufts College at Medford.
May 1—Springfield at Springfield.
May 2—Boston College at Boston.
May 7—U. V. M. at Middlebury.
May 8—Norwich at Middlebury.
May 9—U. V. M. at Burlington.
May 13—Norwich at Northfield.
May 16—St. Michael's at Middlebury.
May 20—St. Francis at Middlebury.
May 22—Hamilton at Clinton, N. Y.
May 23—Colgate at Hamilton, N. Y.
May 26—Boston University at Middlebury (pending).
May 30—Springfield at Middlebury.
June 3—St. Michael's at Middlebury.
June 5—Bates College at Middlebury.
June 13—(Open).

Men's Fellowship Drive Discussed

A short meeting of the Middlebury Christian Association, addressed by its president, Edward Hickcox, was held Wednesday evening, February 25, in Hepburn Social hall. Following the devotional service a short business meeting of the organization was held at which plans were discussed for aiding in the "Fellowship Drive." The Y. W. C. A. of the women's college has obtained approximately one hundred and fifty dollars for this cause, and the men's association has been asked to obtain as much as possible from the men's college. The purpose of the drive is to financially aid students in countries where the war has hindered educational progress.

Marshall Klevenow '25, will speak at the next meeting of the organization to be held this evening at 7:30 in the Social Hall.

KALEID. LAUNCHES INTO FINAL DRIVE

Publication to Appear Early in April—Limited Number to be Printed

Starting last Monday, after an announcement made in chapel by J. Audrey Clark '26, business manager of the Junior year book, that the final contracts had been signed and that work had been begun, the 1926 Kaleidiscope Board launched its final drive for subscriptions.

The samples of the photographic work of this year's book which were on display last week show that the staff will turn out one of the best year books ever. It is expected that the Kaleidoscope will be ready for distribution shortly after the Easter recess, which will be by far the earliest appearance of that publication. This year's book is to be more in the nature of a college annual than a junior book. The section devoted to the junior class is to be shorter than usual since the personal write-ups have been omitted. More space has been given to the campus views, sports, dramatics and extra curricular activities as a result.

It was pointed out that persons who wished to obtain the Kaleidoscope this year must sign up at this time as a limited number will be printed. It will not be enough to state that one wants a book and expect to take it when it comes out. Only the number ordered and upon which a deposit has been made will be published. Everything has been done to make the book a success as far as contents are concerned and now the support of the student body is solicited to make it financially successful. This week is the only opportunity to assure the purchase of the 1926 Kaleidsoscope. Students are urged to sign up immediately.

Changing Election Rules, Stanford University, Stanford, Conn.

If the recommendation of the Election Board is favorably acted upon by the Associated Students the university will vote by precincts in all its election. It is suggested that eight precincts be established in the campus. Backers of the idea believe that if this plan is adopted more students will vote than under the present system of having two polls, one for men and one for women.

FORENSIC FIGHTERS TO TOUR BAY STATE

Strong Negative Team Opposes the Massachusetts and Springfield

The varsity debaters are to go on their first extended tour of the season when a negative team leaves here tomorrow to meet Springfield College Thursday night and Massachusetts Agricultural College on Friday. The team for this debate is made up of Anderson '25 captain, Hawthorne '26 and Reighard '27. All are experienced speakers and follwers of the team are hoping for a victory.

Massachusetts Aggies has debated three times thus far this season on the affirmative side and will be well acquainted with all the intricacies of the subject. All of their debates thus far have resulted in defeats but only after the closest of contests. Their conquerors include the strong Boston University team, New Hampshire and the Bates women The team is made up of Gordon H. Ward '25, of West Englewood, N. J.; Herman E. Pickens '27, of Stoneham, Mass.; Frederick Haskins '17, of Greenfield, Mass. The first two compose the team which won over the Blue here last year and their debating ability is known to be unusual. The debate promises to be a close one and Middlebury can feel that she has earned a well earned victory if she downs the Aggies. Springfield always has a strong team but has not yet debated on this question this season.

Professor W. E. Davison, who is coaching the debaters, announced Monday that the affirmative team which will meet Tufts and Clark next week will be made up of Oscar Cooley '25; John J. Leary '26 and Dana S. Hawthorne '26. This should prove to be a strong combination since all are debaters of proven ability. A slight alteration in the schedule will bring the Clark debate on March 11 in Worcester, with Tufts the next night in Medford.

One-Act Plays of Merit Presented by Drama Club

"Sham" and "Indian Summer" two one-act plays directed respectively by Paul Benedict '25, and Eleanor Frost '26, were given by the Dramatic Club at the College Playhohse Thursday evening, February 26.

The cast of "Sham" was: Thief, Chandler Matthews '27; Clara, Mary Fletcher '28; Charles, Harry Drew '26; Reporter, Richard Hazen '26.

"Sham" afforded a great deal of amusement to the collegiate part of the audience at least. As far as acting goes, Miss Fletcher's was the most outstanding and commendable. The garrulity of the thief was well done by Mr. Matthews, and Mr. Drew made an undecisive and subordinate husband. If the dramatic qualities of the actors as a group were not particularly artistic, still it cannot be denied that their presentation of the play was very enjoyable indeed.

The cast of "Indian Summer" was: Monsieur, Edward McClure '26; Servant, Marian Laughton '26; Adrienne, Dorothy Cate '28; Noel, Paul Ward '25.

"Indian Summer" is a light one-act play with a French background. Thursday night's presentation of it directed by Miss Eleanor Frost '26, was decidedly entertaining. Mr. McClure's acting far excelled his powers of memory. Miss Laughton made a fine servant and Mr. Ward gave a somewhat orignial and unexpected interpretation to his part as the banished nephew. On the whole, little Miss Cate's winsome ways were probably the most appealing. The play was rather long for one-act and it is undoubtedly due to Miss Frost's coaching that the college audience was so pleased with its productions.

Glee Club Off Soon For Big Contest Saturday

Kremser's "Prayer of Thanksgiving." The judges for the contest are to be Arthur Bodansky, Ralph Baldwin and Kurt Schindler.

Professor Bonney announces that the Glee Club will broadcost a short program from station WEAF in New York on Saturday afternoon March 7, from 4:30 to 5:00 p. m. The program will consist of three numbers by the club, a vocal solo by Newcomb, and a violin solo by Prata.

Although Middlebury has not the facilities for musical development that are afforded many of its competitors in the New York contest, yet the club, through the untiring efforts of Professor Larsen, the official director of the organization, stands a very good chance of attaining an even higher place than it received in its first appearance in New York last year.

The other contesting musical organizations in this year's contest are from Columbia, Penn State, Harvard, Princeton, Missouri, Dartmouth, Syracuse, Fordham, New York University, Wisconsin, Yale, Amherst and Wesleyan.

The members of the Middlebury Glee Club this year are: First Tenors, Bacon '27; Livingston '25; Perrin '26; R. Pratt '28; Spencer '25; Wright '26. Second Tenors, Crane '27; Eastman '25; Furbush '28; Morris '26; Mullen '26; Stout '28; G. Thompson '26; Wilson '26. First Bass, Carboy '25; Gruggel '26; Hade '26; Hardy '26; Herrington '26; Jacob '25; Newman '27; A. Yeaw '28. Second Bass, Allen '26; Brokenshire '26; Carlson '25; Cooley '25; Huntington '27; MacDonald '26; McCutcheon '27; Shaw '25; W. Thompson, '26; Van Hoven '26.

The soloists are Mr. Bradford Newcomb and Mr. Michael Prata (violin). Mr. Prata will direct the club at its appearance in Carnegie Hall. The club quartet is composed of Bacon, Perrin, Newcomb and Cooley.

Mr. Eric Jackson instructor in Geology was elected treasurer of the German Club at the last meeting of the organization.

Split Decision on Debate Wins Saint Michael

major part of his speech in showing that the court had not usurped power when the affirmative was willing to concede that point and in fact had said nothing about usurpation of power He went on to show the evils arising from the necessarily strict interpretation of the Constitution which is given by the Court, illustrating his point by the example of the child labor case.

Raymond F. Conlin '27 of Burlington taking up the argument for St. Michael's based his speech on an appeal to the judges. "Suppose, honorable judges," he argued, "that this audience had the power to override you, who are experts, in your decision of this debate. Would you feel honored?" He likened this to the case of the Supreme Court under the proposed plan He also maintained that the only opponents of the Court were those who had received adverse decisions from it and that they were in the minority

Leary struck back with some effective refutation when he pointed out that Roosevelt and Lincoln, two of the greatest men in our history had been critics of the court and that they had never received any adverse decisions from the court. He went on to show how the plant of the affirmative would make for efficient government, working in good refutation throughout his speech.

Frederick W. Wakefield '25 of Burlington, concluding the argument for his team ,in an impassioned flow of oratory denounced the critics of the court and pointed out great and lasting evils that might result from giving such power to Congress.

Carlson, who was the only speaker allowed time for rebuttal, closed the debate with a refutation of the major points of the negative and a summary of his team's case.

The judges of the debate were Prof. John B. DeForest of the University of Vermont, Judge J. A. McNamara, and Col. J. H. Mimms, all of Burlington.

The entire student body of St. Michael's attended the debate and music was furnished during the intermission by the college band.

Middlebury Quintet Prepares for Vermont

On Friday evening the Middlebury basketeers will meet the Vermont quintet in the McCullough gymnasium. From present indications, the game should be a fast and exciting one and the prospects for a Middlebury victory are bright. Vermont won the first game played at Burlington several weeks ago, and were hard pressed to win by a margin of five or six points.

Vermont has recently suffered defeat at the hands of Boston University, New York University and Manhattan College. On the other hand, the Green and Gold hoopsters have defeated Yale and Springfield recently.

The Black Panther has been victorious over Northeastern University and Norwich, while New Hampshire administered a 25 to 37 defeat to Coach Morey's quintet last Friday.

The lineup for Friday night has not been determined yet, but Coach Morey will probably start the regular lineup consisting of Captain Hollquist, McNeil, Knowles and the Rice brothers.

Announcement has been made of the marriage of Stewart Ross and Miss Lauren McAdan of Helen, Mont. Mr. Ross graduated from Middlebury College in 1920 and received his M. D. degree from Harvard in June, 1924. He is a member of the Chi Psi fraternity.

Five Hundred Students Attend West Coast Conference

Five hundred students attended the International Conference of the Y. M. C. A. at Asilomar, Monterey Bay, California, from December 27 to January 3. Six of the delegates had come from Hawaii, two from the National University of Mexico and one from British Columbia. The rest were from colleges in the far western states.

The conference took up the following questions: (1) The West Coast Interracial Problem; (2) Christianity and Vital American Social Problems; (3) Present Needs for Men in Full Time Christmas Service; (4) Education and Training for Christian Service; (5) Campus Conditions Affecting Full Time Christian Life Service.

Among the speakers who addressed the Conference were Bishop McConnell of Pittsburg, Sherwood Eddy, Francis Miller, editor of The Intercollegian, President Norman F. Coleman of Reed College, Oregon, and T. Kakawa, a Japanese pastor of Kobo, Japan.

Sherwood Eddy declared that it was the best convention that he has attended for thirty years.—The New Student.

Neutrals Lose Out to Dekes

Playing off the tie for the championship of the Natioanl league in the Interfraternity basketball tournament the Dekes won last night from the Neutrals by a 33-14 score. Both teams had come through the series with a .666 average having each won four out of a possible six games. The Dekes will meet the Alpha Sigma Phi fraternity, winners in the American league, Friday for the first of the tournament championship games.
